Riding-Master Antoni's Domestic Woes Made

Thomas Brennan, a lawyer, sued Carl Antoni, a riding-master, in Judge Jerolemon's Court to recover $160. Brennan claimed that while acting as counsel for Antoni he negowhile acting as counsel for Antoni ne nego-tiated the loan of $160 for him; that Antoni gave his note, which the plaintiff indorsed; that Antoni refused to pay, and that he had to make good the amount.

In his defense Antoni said that on recom-mendation of his mother-in-law he engaged Brennan as his counsel in a lawsuit in which forth Brennan and Mrs. Meyers entered into collusion to ruin him.

He further stated that Brennan came to him while acting as his counsel, and told him he would have to deposit $500 in court in order to begin action in a certain case; that he had ascertained after giving the lawyer the money that Brennan had not paid it into court, but had appropriated it to his own use, and when asked for an explanation claimed the amount as his counsel fees.

The testimony throughout the trial indicated that Antoni was suffering from a severe case of mother-in-law. Decision was reserved.

I was Commissioner of Education. Mayor Grace asked me to investigate. I found that Squire's Boston record was unsavory. From that time the subject of Squire's removal was a frequent topic between Mayor Grace and myself. The Commissioners of Accounts were investigating Squire's affairs and Mayor Grace and myself. The Commissioners of Accounts were investigating Squire's affairs and Mayor Grace asked me to co-operate. We, found a bad state of affairs. Hubert O. Thompson volunteered to me—not an intimate friend—the statement that he wanted to co-operate with Mayor Grace in obtaining Squire's removal. Squire was defeating the Civil-Service law and appointing unfit men.

Thompson said Squire's letter of resignation was in the hands of R. S. Newcombe. I saw Squire. He said to me: "That letter is deatroyed. I was in the hands of R. S. Newcombe. I saw Squire. He said to me: "That letter is deatroyed. I wheard a good deal about it. It don't amonts to anything. If it does I'll write another cancelling it."

I had no other word with Squire, but told Thompson what he had said, whereupon Thompson took from his pocketbook a copy of the Squire letter to Flynn, and said he had the original in his deposit vault.

I said I thought an indictment would lie on that I said I thought an indictment would lie on that letter and nothing more was needed to oust Squire. I visited Gov. Hill in Januars and laid these facts before him, urging Mr. Squire's removal. I spoke of the employment in the Public Works Department of one Poliard, a felon who had been recently discharged from prison. I stated that Squire had made it a matter of common knowledge that he had written his resignation in escrow, and that he had later written to Mayor Grace cancelling any letter of resignation held by any hands. Gov. fittl let me do most r' the talking, but he did not think these facts strong enough for removal.

On March 2, 1886, I met the Governor at the Executive Chamber and told him my fears of the Bruns bill and the Aqueduct bill not yet passed. I then laid the letter of Squire to Flynn before the Governor by copy. Gov. Hill said I ought to satisfy myself that there was an original of the letter, and that he was not well enough satisfied that the copy I held was a copy of an original to remove Squire on it.

After a long study Gov. Hill said he did not think a criminal charge would be sustained against Squire if the original of that letter were found. He added: "There has been enough scandal in the Democratic party. I hope there won't be any more. I do not feel that I can co-operate with you in the matter of the removal of Mr. Squire unless Mr. Squire were indicted and convicted."

The Governor said he had heard rumors of such a letter. I have never discussed New York politics with Gov. Hill from that day to this. The Governor said he had heard rumors of such a letter. I have never discussed New York politics with Gov. Hill from that day to this.

I said that if Gow. Hill would ask Mr. Squire to resign, he would do it. He appealed to my Democracy, and said that he was tired of Democrats who persisted in stirring up a row. He did not think he would be justified in interfering in the factional fight in New York City.

Recently Inspector Byrnes learned that a concerted effort was being made by several well-known New York thieves to effect the escape of Foster from jail, and that they were having some spiendid tools made here. Frank Lawlor, or Lawters, made a trip to Bangor recently, and ingranated himself into the affections of Sneriff G. W. Brown by representing that he was Merchant Emerson, of this city.

While there Lawhor secured a wax impression of the cell key, returned to New York and had a facsimile of it made, and ordered a second one slightly larger, so that Foster might file and adapt it to the lock should the smaller one fail to work.

It was arranged that Foster should be supplied with files and saws to break through a two-line bar which secured the window leading from the jail corridor to the street, drop down and allow Shang Campbell. Frank Lawlor, "Pretty" Jimmy Wilson and Tommy Matthews to carry him away. Campbell left for Bangor un Saturday night and the other men expected to go on Sunday.

On Friday night Lawlor and Matthews were arrested. Lawlor had the false keys secreted between the skin and his undershirt, and Matthews had a splendid assortment of steel saws and files.

Lawlor made a confession of the bold plot to the inspector and insinuated that Foster had a friend on the inside of the jail, who was to assist him in his escape. Information of the plot has been sent to Sheriff Brown at Bangor.

At the time of the woman's death no one doubte that it was a case of murder. She had been living with Feurbach as his mistress for over a year and they had often quarrelled. Death was caused by two pistol-shot wounds, one in the side and one in the back, and the physicians testified that the latter was in such a position that it could not have been self-inflicted.

The Coroner's jury, however, failed to lay any blame upon Feuerbach and the Grand Jury refused to indict him. blame upon receroisch and the crand outy recused to indict him.

To-day Mr. Howe moved for his client's discharge and as the District-Attorney offered no objection Judge Cowing granted the motion.

The Grand Jury took the view that the woman died while attempting to kill Feuerbach and killed herself. There was a struggle and while the woman's right hand was forced behind her back the pistol went off accidentally.

Then, say the union men, the Brewers' Association will begin to realize that the unions have the whip, and the bosses will desire a settlement. In order to refute the assertion made by the leaders of the unions that the Brewers' the leaders of the unions that the Brewers' Association intended to reduce wages and increase the hours of labor, the Association passed a resolution last week pledging itself to maintain the present rate of wages and hours of work. The Detroit Journal gives the following paragraph, evidently with the vain idea of terrorizing the Eastern boys in advance:

'The practice of the boys on Grand River avenue is attracting crowds daily, and the purzler, Gallaghar, who will make the newsboys of other cities tired by his snake curves, is rapidly getting into condition. He has developed an inshoot that will prove difficult to hit. The boys have practically got over all stiffness and are playing in fine style."

Very wisely, then, the same paper adds this: 'If the Journal boys expect to win games from the clubs they are to meet without an effort, they are recknoling without their host. 'The name of Detroit will not save the boys unless they play great ball." the locked out men.

The Secretary stated that the Investigating Committee appointed to visit saloon-keepers were hard at work.
